

This message is in regards to New Jersey's do not call list. Since my husband & I bought our house we have been swamped with phone calls from various telemarketers. Often the calls come at the most inconvenient times of the day. Usually during dinner or when we are trying to spend time helping our daughter with her homework. We joined the do not call list so that we would spend time as a family not time on the phone trying to ward off many pesky salespeople. We are people that like our privacy and we are ashamed that the 5th amendment has been stretched so far that companies have the right to sell information pertaining to its clients and so on. Since joining the do not call list the calls are less frequent but not totally diminished. Thank you for your time and consideration.
